General Walkout Looms; Red Leaders Use Fire Hose To Stall Police

PARIS, Nov. 19—France was swept today by a steadily-growing wave of Communist-led strikes, with some "sit down" strikes among the 400,000 estimated idle reportedly using fire hose to repel police from one strike-bound Paris factory.

Leaders of the Confederation of Labor (CGT) met meantime to consider ordering a general strike.

As the ranks of strikers in the capital continued to swell, the prominent Paris newspaper "France Soir" said the CGT's powerful Communist faction has decided to call the general strike with workers to occupy the struck factories.

Le Soir, a Communist publication, reported the fire-hose defense. It said that strikers in the Citroen plant repelled gendarmes with the high-pressure hose.

WITH EVERY HOUR, the total of Communist-led strikers in the capital and elsewhere throughout France continued to increase.

At dawn, an estimated 300,000 were idle, but by noon this total had been increased to nearly 400,000.

Between 50 and 70 thousand of the increase was represented by (Continued on Page Two)

12 FOUND DEAD AS TRANSPORT RAMS MOUNTAIN

ROME, Nov. 19—At least 12 persons were killed today when a Swedish plane crashed into a mountain near Salerno, Italy, in a heavy fog. The plane was demolished.

The craft was on a flight from Abyssinia.

(Reuters declared that unofficial reports from Naples indicated that 20 were killed and 10 injured.)

An official Italian government announcement said the plane was transporting back to Sweden crew members of five Swedish planes that had been delivered to Abyssinia.

All aboard the ill-fated plane were said to have perished, and that 12 bodies were recovered "so far."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

The royal wedding and the opening of congress have made this an uncommon week. It's not often a big union and a big separation come so close together.

I hear the Labor government wished the princess a long, happy and austere life.

In Ohio, the CIO has recommended that Sen. Taft retire. They feel that he has been working too long and too hard.

But the senator feels better since Mr. Truman warned radio newsmen that a good-looking fine-voiced fellow might try to take over the country.

In fact I understand that eight Republican candidates said to their wives: "See, he's afraid of me."

Dewey seems to be running neutral at the moment. He has been criticized by a Republican for not talking enough and by a Democrat for talking too much. Not every candidate can please everybody like that.

'SHOOT-IT-OUT' TACTICS FORGOTTEN as Wisconsin sheriff (left) talks to Robert Winslow (center) and Buford Sennett, after the two ex-convicts surrendered to authorities on Neillville, Wis., farm, where they had hidden for 10 hours. Quick justice was meted out Tuesday to the men. They were given life sentences for the murder of Carl Carlson, 25, and the criminal assault of Carlson's sister-in-law, Janet Ann Rosenblatt, 19.

Justice Moves Swiftly For Two Killer-Rapists

WAUPUN, Wis., Nov. 19—A night-long orgy of lust and murder ended behind prison walls today for two desperadoes who confessed killing a University of Wisconsin Medical student and violating his sister-in-law, a University of Michigan coed from Cleveland Heights, O.

Wisconsin justice moved swiftly yesterday within 24 hours after they surrendered at their besieged north woods farm refuge, Buford Sennett, 22, and Robert Winslow, 24, both ex-convicts, were sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor and shipped off to the state prison here.

The two desperadoes confessed they shot and killed Carl L. Carlson, 25, and kidnapped and repeatedly violated his sister-in-law, Miss Janet Ann Rosenblatt, 19, last Friday night.

Carlson's body, trussed with logging chains and weighted with a large rock, was recovered yesterday from the Big Tiger Rapids near Blue River, Wis., where the two desperadoes dumped him before dawn last Saturday after a wild all-night ride with the young coed as prisoner.

THE STEEL DOORS of the prison closed behind Sennett and Winslow at 5 p. m. yesterday less than an hour after Judge Roy H. Proctor passed sentence and expressed the regret he could not mete out the death penalty under Wisconsin law.

Deputy Warden R. J. Stoffel who accepted the prisoners for the state said that under a life term the two prisoners would be eligible for parole after serving 11 years and three months.

But after Judge Proctor's charge against them yesterday, however, penal officials said there was little doubt that the two desperadoes would live out their lives behind prison walls.

Sennett and Winslow pleaded guilty only to the charge of first degree murder and then heard Judge Proctor say:

"I do not believe that ever in the history of Dane county—perhaps in the entire state of Wisconsin—has there ever been a more cold-blooded, cruel, and revolting crime committed than this one which has been perpetrated by you two ruffians."

"Personally, I don't believe that I would have any qualms whatever if our constitution provided that in cases like this I would have the power and authority to sentence you to the gas chamber, the electric chair or to be hanged by the neck until dead."

EXPECTANT MOTHER DIES IN OSU TRAILER CAMP

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19—The 20-year-old bride of an Ohio State university GI student died early today after she and her husband were overcome by gas fumes in their trailer home.

The dead woman was Mrs. Louise Lenert of McArthur, O. Her husband, Willy, 22, an engineering college sophomore, was in "poor" condition in University hospital.

The couple was discovered unconscious in their bed in the trailer last night in the trailer camp where they lived. Neighbors investigated after Lenert and his wife had not been seen all day yesterday.

Mrs. Lenert was an expectant mother and was attended by a doctor after midnight yesterday morning.

WAR VETERANS TO BE GIVEN RIGHT TO LAND

City Fathers Also Approve $49,000 Budget For Coming Year

Circleville city council Tuesday night passed an ordinance accepting the 23-lot war veterans' homesite sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and also approved a budget of $49,000 for operation of the city government in 1948.

The action on the homesite, situated just west of South Court street at the south edge of the city, came after many weeks of discussion and argument during which members of a special committee of the Chamber, headed by John Magill, conferred several times with council members.

Mr. Magill, who attended Tuesday night's meeting, said the 23 lots will be sold for an average price of $400 each and that the sale has been limited to war veterans. Several weeks ago, council balked when the ordinance accepting the homesite came up for passage.

COUNCIL GAVE unanimous approval of the 1948 budget of $49,000. It was certified Tuesday to the council by the county budget commission, it was explained by Councilman George L. Crites, chairman of council's finance committee.

An ordinance transferring $300 to the service department was enacted as an emergency measure under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance providing for addition to the city of 27 acres of land along Hargus creek, near the Pickaway County Fairgrounds, was read for the second time by Clerk Fred Nicholas.

YOUNGSTER IS ASSURED NEW ARTIFICIAL ARM

WILLOUGHBY, O., Nov. 19—Ten-year-old Phyllis Detweiler of Willoughby township was assured today of an artificial "operating" arm to replace the one lost because of cancer.

The child already has a "dress arm," provided by schoolmates. Last night she appeared on the radio program "We the People" from Cleveland and was told that an anonymous donor would present her with an arm which she can learn to use almost as well as a real one.

SHE'S GETTING ALONG FINE now and there is every hope that she will recover fully. The little tot above is Sandra Sue Fouch, 11-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fouch, 212 Town street, Circleville. Sandra Sue on Aug. 23 was removed to Children's hospital, Columbus, and reported to be one of the worst cases among the 15 infantile paralysis victims reported in Pickaway county. But a baby-sized iron lung, in which she appears above, special casts and excellent medical treatment are restoring her to normal. She no longer is a prisoner of the iron lung and the casts are gone. Attending physicians say there is every hope she will defeat the dread malady.

COURT RULES ON GAS TAX

Judges Rule State Revenue Can Be Used Only For Maintenance

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19—The state supreme court held today that the use of gasoline tax revenues was restricted to highway maintenance purposes by action of the last general assembly.

The high court held that language employed in the so-called Deddens act repeals sections authorizing use of the tax funds for new highway construction.

The supreme court handed down its decision on a test case brought in behalf of Highway Director Murray D. Shaffer against Finance Director Herbert Defenbacher. The suit requested release of $84,500 for an Ashland county construction project.

EFFECT OF the decision was to tie up funds derived from the gas taxes until a special session of the legislature can clarify the language of the Deddens act.

In its original intent, the act sought only to permit counties to use their gas tax funds for sidewalks along county roads in congested areas.

In its final wording, however, the law restricted the funds to maintenance use.

The supreme court decision did not take up the law's effect on county, city and township highway funds.

AMUSEMENT TAX GETS READING BEFORE COUNCIL

An ordinance providing a three percent amusement tax in Circleville was given its first reading by city council Tuesday night as members indicated they had no intention of levying a payroll tax in Circleville.

The amusement tax ordinance was prepared by City Solicitor George Gerhardt and he said it authorizes collection of a three percent tax on theaters, athletic fields and stadiums and other amusement places.

City officials have estimated the tax would net about $3,000 annually here.

Several council members voiced opposition to the payroll tax. Such a tax is now being levied at Toledo and is under consideration by the Columbus council.

GUARDED GOWN, CAKE DELIVERED

Everything Now In Readiness For Royal Wedding Tomorrow

LONDON, Nov. 19—Princess Elizabeth's elaborately guarded wedding gown and her towering wedding cake arrived safely at Buckingham Palace today.

Meanwhile authoritative quarters forecast that London's official gazette would announce tonight the creation of a dukedom for Philip Mountbatten, probably the dukedom of Edinburgh.

The informants declared that following her marriage, the princess would be known as "Princess Elizabeth, Duchess of Edinburgh."

The delivery of the gown was particularly undramatic in view of the secrecy and precautions that surrounded its creation.

A small, green truck, without escort, slipped into Buckingham Palace's "trade entrance" side gate, and the driver stepped out to hand a four-foot white box containing the precious gown to a palace official.

THE DARK BLUE van that delivered the cake arrived with somewhat more fanfare. A motorcycle escort paced the vehicle which was followed by a truck in case the delivery van broke down en route.

DIPLOMAT SAYS YANKS GOATED TO RESENTMENT

State Secretary Reprimands Reds On Eve Of Flight To Treaty Meet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—Secretary of State George Marshall prepared today to leave for the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in London after bluntly attacking Russian propaganda as "brazen and contemptuous" and declaring it is time to "call a halt."

Marshall struck back at the Russians with some of his strongest words and said that the Soviet policy had goaded the United States to "active resentment."

The secretary's remarks were made in an important foreign policy speech delivered in Chicago in his last appearance before leaving tomorrow on President Truman's former personal plane, the "Sacred Cow," for the Nov. 25 London conference.

Marshall roughly outlined his attitude toward the meeting in his address Tuesday night.

THE SECRETARY left enough blank spaces between his words of firmness to cause observers in Washington to believe he has some surprise moves up his sleeve if he fails to make headway on the German and Austrian peace treaties.

However, he gave little indication of great success. He stressed particularly the increasing Russian attitude of bitterness and opposition.

He denounced Russia's "brazen and contemptuous" propaganda as a threat to world stability and said it consisted "more of vituperation or diatribe than of logic and adherence to the facts."

The secretary added: "We are aware of the seriousness and extent of the campaign which is being directed against us as one of the bulwarks of western civilization."

"We are not blind to any of the forms which this attack assumes. And we do not propose to stand by and watch the disintegration of the international community to which we belong."

MARSHALL DECLARED that the United States could afford, because of its strength, to discount "alarms and excursions" intended to distract the nation and "to proceed along the path which our traditions have defined."

Marshall continued:

"I will approach this conference in London with an open mind, and I will seek only for a sound basis for agreement. I will seek to avoid statements for mere popular or propaganda effect, no matter what the provocation."

"It is my purpose to concentrate solely on finding an acceptable basis of agreement to terminate the present tragic stalemate and to speed the advent of a new era of peace and hope for Europe and the world."

MEYERS CLEARED $114,220 WITH CONTRACT FIRM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—The senate war investigating committee disclosed records today showing that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers received a total of $114,220.88 from a Dayton (Ohio) war contracting firm during the first three years of the war.

This followed testimony that Thomas Readnow, youthful "vice president" of the firm, received a salary of $18,600 a year from the firm during the three years he was in the Army, kicking back more than $15,000 annually to Meyers.

Readnow's brother-in-law, Blériot Lamarre, "president" of Aviation Electric Corp., the company of which Meyers allegedly was secret owner, returned to the witness stand to tell of placing the general's father-in-law on the payroll at $12,000 a year as "vice president in charge of production."

TAFT IS READY TO 'LISTEN' TO MEAT RATIONING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, chairman of the joint economic committee, declared today he is "willing to listen" to proposals for a stand-by program of meat rationing.

Taft announced that the joint committee agreed today to begin public hearings on President Truman's anti-inflation program Friday afternoon with Agriculture Secretary Anderson as the first witness.

The chairman said there was "no discussion" at today's meeting of a secret memo given his committee suggesting meat rationing just five days in advance of President Truman's explosive anti-inflation message.

The staff report urged Taft and his colleagues to give "most serious consideration" to a program of deferred meat rationing and also advised that:

"Perhaps a general rationing policy and operating plan should be worked out in readiness for use when needed."

NEAR ANARCHY SEEN IN ITALY

Red Insurgents Take 3 Towns By Force; Premier Holds Parley

ROME, Nov. 19—Conditions close to anarchy arose over wide areas of Italy's Apulia province today.

Strong detachments of police and infantry frustrated attempts by Communist insurgents to take over three Apulia towns by force.

But there were countless scattered incidents of violence which sent Premier Alcide De Gasperi into emergency conference with President Enrico de Nicola.

The insurgents scored their greatest success in the hill town of Minervino Murge, where they destroyed headquarters of the "Common Man" and Democratic parties, assuming virtually complete control for a period of 24 hours.

OTHER DISORDERS occurred in the Apulia towns of Molletta, Barletta, Ruvo, Trani and Poggio Orsini, where right wing party quarters were devastated.

At Bisceglia, the railway station was occupied by striking farmhands who left their toil three days ago on Communist party demands.

In what evidently was a well-organized plan, Democratic headquarters were burned at Sessaurunca, Lucania, Lavello, Rapolla and Rionero on Italy's toe.

At Siena, Communists demanding the release of five "partisans" accused of "common crimes" threatened a general strike if they are not freed in 24 hours.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—The senate war investigating committee disclosed records today showing that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers received a total of $114,220.88 from a Dayton (Ohio) war contracting firm during the first three years of the war.

This followed testimony that Thomas Readnow, youthful "vice president" of the firm, received a salary of $18,600 a year from the firm during the three years he was in the Army, kicking back more than $15,000 annually to Meyers.

Readnow's brother-in-law, Blieriot Lamarre, "president" of Aviation Electric Corp., the company of which Meyers allegedly was secret owner, returned to the witness stand to tell of placing the general's father-in-law on the payroll at $12,000 a year as "vice president in charge of production."

COMMIE STRIKE SPREADING IN FRENCH CITIES

The fact that more and more of Paris' metal workers were laying down their tools.

The strike of coal miners in the north continued to spread, too, despite the opposition of certain socialist leaders in the CGT.

In strike-bound Marseille, first of the French cities to be hit by the current wave of strikes, French troops again reinforced the port area where other soldiers were unloading several American ships.

Employees of Paris' savings banks also joined the strikers. The coal strike in the Pas de Calais and Department du Nord regions affected 110,000 men, and at least 85,000 workers were idle in the strike-bound Mediterranean port of Marseille.

Premier Paul Ramadier's government, being steadily undermined by political and economic troubles, moved yesterday to end the parliamentary immunity of National Assemblyman Jean Cristofal and Leon David, who is a member of the Council of the Republic.

COURT TEST IS SEEN OF STRIP MINING LAW

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19 — A possible supreme court test of Ohio's new strip mine control act was indicated today by the Ohio Coal Association.

Association President R. L. Ireland said no decision was reached at a closed meeting in Columbus yesterday. He added, however, that there was "a great deal of interest" in testing the law's constitutionality.

The law, effective Jan. 1, requires strip miners to pay a $50 license fee and post a bond of $100 per acre for restoration. The law permits a charge up to $200 per acre for restoring stripped land.

REVIVAL IS URGED

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 19 — Plans were under way today to reactivate two units of the Ohio National Guard in Sandusky. City officials have been informed that if they repair the old water works building for use as an armory, the state would enter into a 10-year lease at $4,000 a year.

NEW TRIAL SEEN

CANTON, O., Nov. 19 — A request for a new trial was expected to be filed today by attorneys for Jack E. Coran, 44, convicted by a Stark county common pleas jury of performing an illegal operation on a school teacher last July.

POLICE SEEKING ROBBERS OF BANK AT JOHNSTOWN

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19 — Central Ohio law enforcement officers remained on the lookout today for two "businessmen" bandits who held up the Johnstown Savings and Loan Co. yesterday, and escaped with $2000.

The bandits, one of whom was carrying a brief case, menaced three employees with a gun and herded them into the rear of the establishment where they were locked in a rest room.

While one bandit stood guard, the other stuffed bills and rolls of coins into the brief case.

No witnesses were able to give an accurate description of the getaway car, and the robbers could have escaped by any one of four roads.

From a description of their methods, police believed that the gunmen may have been the same pair which held up and robbed the Citizens' Federal Savings and Loan in Marysville, last April 29, and made away with $5000 in cash.

CHINA OFFERS TREATY PLAN

Step Is Compromise To Heal Differences Between U. S., Reds

NANKING, Nov. 19 — China stepped forward today with a compromise plan designed to break the deadlock between the United States and Russia in their dispute over procedure for the framing of a peace treaty with Japan.

The Chinese government formally urged that drafting of the treaty be entrusted to the 12-nation Far Eastern commission, with a simple majority prevailing but with that majority to include the unanimous concurrence of the Big Four powers.

The plan was submitted simultaneously to the United States, Russia and Britain, which with China comprise the major powers concerned in the Far East.

Vice Foreign Minister George Yeh told a news conference in Nanking that the proposal was transmitted to the American, Soviet and British foreign ministers Monday through the Chinese embassies in Washington, Moscow and London.

China's procedural plan for drafting the Japanese peace treaty represents a proposed compromise between the American and Soviet plans.

COOL, SUNNY WEATHER PREDICTED FOR AREA

Continued cool and mostly sunny conditions were forecast by the weather bureau for Ohio through tomorrow.

Forecasters said that the sky would begin clouding again late tomorrow, with rain likely during the night and through Friday.

The mercury was continuing to hold several degrees below normal for this time of the year: Yesterday afternoon temperatures failed to get above the 41-degree mark, while the lowest this morning was 27 degrees at Youngstown.

THE UNITED STATES HAS CALLED FOR A PRELIMINARY CONFERENCE OF THE FAR EASTERN COMMISSION'S MEMBER STATES, WITH A TWO-THIRDS MAJORITY TO RULE BUT WITH NO VETO POWER VESTED IN ANY MEMBER NATION. RUSSIA HAS COUNTERED WITH THE PROPOSAL THAT THE JAPANESE TREATY BE DRAFTED BY THE BIG FOUR POWERS, EACH TO RETAIN THE VETO RIGHT.

SALARIES HIKED

WARREN, O., Nov. 19 — Warren city council today had approved a $50,000 yearly wage increase for city employees. The increases include $25 a month for salaried workers, $1 a day for those paid per diem, and 10 cents an hour for hourly employees.

WOUNDS FATAL

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Nov. 19 — Tuscarawas county's first 1947 hunting fatality was recorded today after Darold Richard Dennis, 20, of New Philadelphia died of a wound received Saturday. Dennis was accidentally shot in the back by a fellow hunter.

PARLEY BOOKED TO FIND ACCORD IN TRUCK STRIKE

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 19 — Employers and drivers were to meet today in the first big step toward ending the two-day strike called by Local 100, Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helper's union (AFL).

The strike has already produced a "creeping paralysis" effect upon some local industrial and commercial firms due to a lack of coal deliveries.

Harry Fuller, of the Fuller Motor Delivery and Construction Co., was named chairman of a special employer's group which will meet with representatives of the Local 100 over the bargaining table today.

Meanwhile emergency coal deliveries to hospitals, and schools continued, but the coke and coal merchants association warned that several downtown buildings may be without heat by the end of the week if the strike continues.

An intercity group, representing 77 truck lines, re-emphasized its guarantee to make any settlement retroactive to Nov. 16.

PAYROLL BANDIT FACES SENTENCE OF 10-25 YEARS

AKRON, O., Nov. 19 — Roy C. Blackburn, 29, faced today a sentence of 10 to 25 years for the $31,000 B. F. Goodrich payroll robbery here last June.

A jury of nine women and three men found the Ohio State university medical student guilty after deliberating one hour and 40 minutes.

A mandatory sentence for armed robbery is 10 to 25 years, but whether he will be sent to the Ohio penitentiary or to the Mansfield reformatory is up to the discretion of the court.

Stanley Denlinger, Blackburn's lawyer, announced immediately he would ask for a new trial. He asked that Blackburn be released under $10,000 bond, but Assistant County Prosecutor Jackson B. Morris said the defendant's bond was automatically cancelled by the guilty verdict. Blackburn is being held at the Summit county jail.

"WHERE THERE'S LIFE"

Old Bigtop Preacher Tells Club Circleville Is Great Circus Town

Circleville is a circus-minded city.

So said "Doc" Waddell, paunchy but bright-eyed old clergyman with the Mills Brothers circus which is wintering at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds.

Waddell, who appeared Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Men's club of the Circleville Methodist church, declared that this city has produced an abundant crop of great showmen, living and dead.

Among those no longer living, Waddell said, were "the Long boys, Seyfert and Caskey, Rudolph Gessley, Colonel Charles E. Groce, Steve Henry, and William Wallace. Among those still living—some active in show business, some not—are Ted Lewis, Colonel John Vogel and Jim Sweetman—they all were either born, bred or reared here."

Waddell has what he calls his "Alone Remembrance Service" for "gone-on" friends.

And so Tuesday he visited the local cemetery and "in prayer and silent tribute remembered his departed friends." He included in the group the late Mrs. A. R. Boling, a past grand matron of the Eastern Star.

He praised the "Pickens tribe"—especially C. C. Pickens and wife, formerly of Circleville, who now operate a grocery in Columbus near where Waddell lives.

He said "The Pickens were married in this Methodist church, on this hallowed ground where I now stand by the church's then pastor, Rev. McGhee."

The jolly sawdust trail preacher declared he was 85 years old—"not 84 as the papers say... and I'll live to be 185 because Saint Peter won't need me for a long while yet. When he does, he will give me the job of leading the circus parade Up There."

Waddell related that he is an honorary member of 2,026 different Star chapters, has visited 2,067 chapters and is the "father of the Eastern Star."

CITY EMPLOYEE ADMITS SHOOTING WOMAN, 39

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 19—Robert A. Watts, 25, city employee, admitted to state police and Marion county sheriff's officers today that he was responsible for the death of 39-year-old Mrs. Mary Lois Burney, prominent society matron.

Watts told police that Mrs. Burney was shot last Wednesday with her own 16-gauge shotgun as he wrestled with her in an attempt to get the weapon.

ther of the Travelling Eastern Star Bible.

A retired Methodist evangelist, Waddell paid tribute to Rev. M. R. White, retired United Brethren minister of Circleville, who has been an adviser to the genial circusman many years.

Waddell told the Methodist men that Circleville will derive many benefits from playing host to the Mills Brothers circus during the winter.

HE EMPHASIZED that the Mills brothers—Jack, Jake, Paul and Harry—are the only circusmen who never exhibit on Sunday, maintain a "carnival church" for their people, have a pastor ("the only one of its kind in captivity") and who sponsor church services on the circus lot.

Waddell related his many experiences, told several humorous stories, paid a tribute to "mothers" and closed with a flowery vision of the future. He declared:

"I see a world without a king, queen, dictator, potentate, or unprincipled ruler—they and their thrones crumbled to dust. I see a world at peace—a world where labor reaps its full reward, where work and worth go hand in hand, where the poor girl, trying to win bread with a needle the needle that has been called the "asp for the breast of the poor"—is not driven to the desperate chance of crime or death, of suicide or shame. As I look, life lengthens, joy deepens, love canopies the earth, and over all in the great dome shines the eternal star of hope."

More than 75 members of the men's group attended the meeting which was the first of its kind since June, 1946. The Rev. Elisha Kneisley gave the invocation. Group singing was led by Dr. W. L. Sprouse with Dick Plum at the piano. Barton Deming, brotherhood president, outlined the 1948 program and appointed various committees. Other officers are J. L. Chilcote, vice-president, and Vernon Blake, secretary-treasurer. The project committee is composed of H. K. Lanman, chairman, Dwight Steele, Virgil Cress, Ned Plum, Alfred Lee, Glen Weiler, and John Magill.

LAD SHOTS SELF

SPRINGFIELD, O., Nov. 19—Fifteen-year-old Elden Hawke, Jr., of near Springfield, was in critical condition today after shooting himself with a 20-gauge shotgun while hunting. The charge struck the youth in the left side of the face.

A town in England is named Moss Side. It is one and one-half miles from Manchester.

CHINESE VOTERS SET FOR FIRST ASSEMBLY POLL

NANKING, Nov. 19 — Chinese voters numbering up to approximately 156,000,000 will go to the polls Friday, Saturday and Sunday in their country's first national elections to select delegates to the national assembly.

The assembly is scheduled to convene Christmas Day — when the new constitution comes into effect—to elect China's president and vice-president.

Communist occupation of approximately 600 electoral districts will prevent election of the full quota of 2,971 national assembly delegates allotted under the constitution to China proper. Mongolia is to select 22 representatives; Tibet, 10; various border racial groups, 6; overseas Chinese, 19; and occupation groups, 56.

Last year's crop of alfalfa hay was estimated to be about 31,817,000 tons, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica 1947 Book of the Year. This was 6 per cent above the 1935-44 average of 29,886,000 tons.

POLICE SEEKING KILLER OF LASS IN CALIFORNIA

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Nov. 19.—Bakersfield police today sought the killer of 5-year-old Myretta Jones, whose nude and battered body was found last night in a cave six blocks from her home.

Deputy L. M. Pryor of the sheriff's detail said the body had been mangled and that a large rock had smashed the girl's skull.

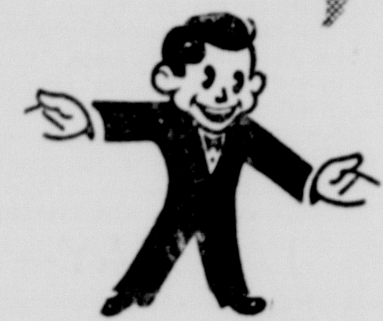

The girl's mother, Mrs. Lorene Jones, had sent Myretta to the neighborhood grocery earlier in the afternoon.

When Myretta failed to return, deputy sheriffs, police and neighbors joined in searching the area. Approximately six hours after her disappearance she was found in a vacant lot cave believed dug by children.

The girl's clothes were found heaped in one side of the cave, and police said a sex maniac might have accosted the child.

SWISS GALLATIN

A GREAT foreign-born American was commemorated the other day when Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder unveiled a bust of Albert Gallatin at Washington. A Swiss by birth, Gallatin became secretary of the treasury under Jefferson, and held the office for 13 years. This is still the record, though at one time Henry Morgenthau, Jr., looked as if he might break it. Gallatin originated the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, which gives the first congressional consideration to all revenue measures. This was only one of his many financial devices, which placed him among the leaders of this field.

He also helped frame the Treaty of Ghent which ended the War of 1812, and served as minister to France and England. Nevertheless, when proposed for vice president in 1824, he was so strongly opposed because of his foreign birth that he withdrew. (Having come to this country before the adoption of the Constitution, he could not have been barred from office by his birth abroad). He was interested in public affairs down to his death in 1849.

A great man in his day, Gallatin should not be forgotten now.

LEGION BUILDING PLAN

ONE OF the many problems to confront the new session of Congress will be a veterans' housing plan submitted by the American Legion. Its Commander, James F. O'Neill, following an executive committee session in Indianapolis recently, said details of the plan would permit groups of veterans to form nonprofit corporations for financing houses. Financial assistance would come through sale of government bonds. The purpose is to achieve speedy low-cost housing for the countless veterans all over the country who still are house-hunting while living in cramped and inadequate or excessively expensive quarters.

Without attempting to pass on the merit of this housing plan, it would seem that some good might come from a study made officially by the American Legion on this most pressing veteran need. The basic difficulty with construction today, whether it be for former GI's or non-veterans, is cost. If the Legion plan can lick this complex problem, the group will be helping not only its own constituency, but the great numbers of other Americans who are increasingly troubled by the housing shortage.

Yes, this is "one world," but there are an awful lot of people in it, all wanting to have their own way, and raising Cain when they can't get it.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Walter Reuther's complete victory at the U.A.W. convention not only routed the Communists among the automobile workers but it finally eliminated the influence of John L. Lewis from that organization which he really founded, for the fight on Reuther was directed by Lewis.

Walter Reuther, like David Dubinsky, is a Social Democrat, which means that he believes in the gradual socialization of the means of production and distribution—but without revolution. Social Democrats, while they would, within the framework of the democratic process, change the economy of their country, reject the concept of the world revolution and of subservience to Moscow. Every Social Democrat is more violently anti-Communist than most capitalists. They hate Stalin as they hate slavery.

With reference to Lewis, I have just been reading George Creel's book, "Rebel at Large." Creel is one of those old-time reporters who got inside a story. Referring to "The Roosevelt-Lewis Feud," Creel says: "... A curious feature of the clamor was that while people and press thought it shameful for John Lewis to have given (money to Roosevelt), no paper or person made mention that it was equally shameful for Mr. Roosevelt to have taken."

Creel tells this story. The United Mine Workers had authorized Lewis to give Roosevelt $250,000 for campaign expenses. They brought the check to Roosevelt and wanted the President to be photographed receiving it. This he declined to do saying, "... Just keep it, and I'll call on you if and when any small need arises." Lewis felt himself outsmarted because from then on Roosevelt would call on him for any amount. "You don't know politicians," was the Lewis retort. "They stay under the golden drip from the honey barrel until no drop is left."

He was right. I quote Creel: "... The first request was from Jim Farley asking $50,000 for the expenses of the headquarters in New York. A second call begged $92,000 for the purchase of radio time, and a third came from Senator La Follette and Frank Walsh, who were organizing Progressives in support of Roosevelt. Cannily enough, John Lewis adopted a fixed pattern of procedure at the start. As each petitioner presented himself, he intoned this ritual: 'Sir, I know you well and favorably, of course, and have no doubt as to your authority. My arrangement, however, was with the President, and I must ask that you bring me his written order.'"

In each case the request was confirmed by the President until the amount was ... $469,668.91. To this amount was added the sum of $14,119.64 turned in by local unions, and $2,500 worth of tickets for the inaugural parade, making a total of $463,288.55. A large part of this huge sum was plainly earmarked as loans, but only $50,000, secured by the Democratic National Committee's note, was ever repaid."

Not surprisingly, Mr. Roosevelt soon forgot the Lewis treasury, for it was not needed at the moment. The Roosevelt smear machine attributed this breach to Lewis arrogance, and even to his desire to be Vice President. Creel explains it this way:

"I have always been of the opinion that the real explanation of the break lies in the contrasting personalities of the two men. Proud and independent, utterly lacking in

DIET AND HEALTH

The Treatment of Acidosis

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WE hear a lot of loose talk these days about acidosis, but few people really understand what it means.

To get the picture, try thinking of the body, with all its many systems and complex activities, as a delicately adjusted scale in which one thing is matched against another to give an unstable but constant equilibrium; or, as a tight-rope artist who would fall from his wire in a moment if he ever stood still.

Complex Fluid

Nowhere is this more true than of the blood, that complex and wonderful fluid in which alkaline substances are matched against acids to make possible the complicated reactions by which we live. To doctors, this equilibrium of the blood is known as the acid-base balance and, if it is seriously upset one way or the other, we get into all sorts of trouble.

A good many different diseases can cause acids to pile up in the tissues faster than they can be eliminated. Other conditions tend to reduce the body's store of alkaline substances unduly. In either case, acidosis results.

Tendency to Acidosis

Diabetic patients have a tendency toward acidosis. It may develop in otherwise healthy people who drink alcohol to excess, or it may be a complication of starvation, heart attacks, and severe asthma.

Alkalosis occurs either from an oversupply of alkaline substances, such as baking soda, or from loss of acid during severe and repeated vomiting.

List of Symptoms

The symptoms of acidosis are loss of appetite, a feeling of tiredness, muscle pains, headache, sickness to the stomach, vomiting, cramps, and rapid breathing. There is a loss of fluid from the blood as a result of vomiting or fluid accumulating in the body tissues. The rapid breathing and loss of blood fluid are the most serious symptoms.

Alkalosis causes lightheadedness, dizziness, sickness at the stomach, and headache. As the condition becomes more severe, there may be muscle spasms and, at times, even convulsions.

Cause of Appearance

The treatment to be given for these conditions bears, in large measure, on the causes of their appearance. For example, in chronic kidney inflammation or chronic arthritis, acidosis is treated by the giving of fluids by injection into a vein or under the skin. A mixture of salt solution and glucose together with sodium lactate is often employed.

When acidosis occurs in the diabetic patient, he is given injections of insulin every half hour and from a quart to a quart and a half of fluid by mouth. This fluid is made up of glucose and orange juice, together with salt solution and water. If the patient is unconscious, or there is sickness at the stomach and vomiting, the fluids are given by injection.

From Alcohol Poisoning

In acidosis which develops from alcohol poisoning, the sodium lactate is employed. This, too, may be given by injection into a vein. An alkaline diet following all injections of glucose or salt solutions into a vein is helpful.

In acidosis which occurs during heart failure a diet limited in salt should be used. Under condition, alkalosis or idosis, may be serious. Whichever condition is present should be promptly recognized and treatment started at once, the type depending upon the cause of the disorder.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. A.: My daughter will be three years old in March. During the winter she gets a choking cough. What causes that, and is there a cure for it?

Answer: Coughing attacks may be produced by a number of disorders. The condition may be due to asthma, to inflammation of the throat, the larynx, or windpipe. A careful study should be made by a physician to determine the cause, so that proper treatment can be suggested.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
TERESA cried until the log that split was only embers.

Alison asked, "Why did you marry Sam? Why not Philip? You knew Philip then."

"Because I couldn't do that to Philip."

Alison's voice rose and shook. "You couldn't do it to Philip but you did it to Sam!"

"Yes, I'd known Philip longer. I couldn't deceive him... Twice my feelings have rushed in and closed over me; with Carl and when I saw Sam at his farm this morning. All I should have been to him and hadn't been I wanted to be."

"Last night you said you loved me... I didn't know you loved me."

"I didn't know it myself until last night. I've admired you and envied you and feared you a little all my life but until last night I didn't know I loved you."

Teresa dried her eyes. Her voice was thick. "Sam hasn't wanted me. I'm not a complete fool. His friendly overtures were for Suzy—getting her in the nursery school, at the dinner table, in the living room, all the many little privileges he thought were right. He's never and the slightest intention of marrying me. I'm not as fatally desirable as I thought I was. Now they're all gone, all washed out of me, my feelings and my sins. I don't feel anything. The only tie Sam and I had is ended. I've hurt him. I feel that! For a second I was afraid. I was afraid he'd kill me. Perhaps he would have if he had nothing else. But he has something else. He has you."

"Sam loves me?"

"Of course. I've always known. He loves you very deeply and very dearly. That's why I've tried to keep you apart. Her hands tightened. "I'm a very bad loser. I told him. Not you. You made me. Just sitting there looking at me. Dead silence and all the confusion. I can't bear confusion. Not even an untidy desk. Everything was in confusion—Carl, his saying goodbye, going off to nowhere. No address. Nothing. The face of a wedding. Smiling, being charming to everyone and so relieved. The years in this house, seeing Carl in Suzy, working, eternally working with Sam slipping in and out of my mind and all the things I'd left unfinished with him, all the sad regrets. Your will defeated mine tonight."

"Was it will, Teresa? Or was it conscience, the little voice of the soul?"

"My will has been everything to me, my servant and my master. I was born unlucky. Born with a need for affection that I never received as a child, born undemonstrative myself, loving a beautiful home and with a body capable of producing children easily but also with a fierce appetite to succeed and live independently. To which person shall I be true? The mother or the professional woman? I can't be both. I've tried and I've been partly because I've hated them so, because love and home and children can quite satisfactorily be only one fourth of their lives. Professionally, I'm a success. But as a woman I'm a rotten failure."

"But if you could choose again?"

"I'd be a woman and give my daughter a name. But who would have me? Who would have us? The sins of the fathers... The war is over and all our fervent patriotism is dormant. The paper that listed Carl as a casualty is yellow with age. He becomes fainter and fainter with time... You're a better mother than I am, Alison. I'm more efficient, of course. But it is what children remember that's important. Will Suzy remember my efficiency or your drinking tea from an empty cup? Will she remember how much I paid for her dresses or your letting her wear your silver slippers at play?"

She got up heavily. Alison followed her up the stairs, saw her pause before Suzy's closed door, the muscles in her face tighten, relax, then tighten again. She turned to Alison.

"I'd like to cancel this out, too, while I'm about it. It makes me feel quite religious, confessing my sins... Our grandfather was a rich man until some girl person talked him into playing the stock market. He played it heavily and lost. He was too proud to tell anyone he was almost cleaned out. Almost. There was slightly less than ten thousand dollars in his safe deposit box. I had the key. A few days before he died I took most of it. That money gave me my start. I had to have it. My reasoning, I thought, was sound. Mother would only spend her half foolishly while with all of it I could use it wisely... I'll write you a check tonight for half the amount I took. It will give you and Sam a start."

"Teresa, I..."

"Everything's snarled like a string with a thousand knots. I've nothing left for which to be grateful."

She turned quickly and went in her room. The key was turned in the lock by a desperate hand.

Quietly Alison went down the carpeted steps again to the telephone in the kitchen.

SWISS GALLATIN

A GREAT foreign-born American was commemorated the other day when Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder unveiled a bust of Albert Gallatin at Washington. A Swiss by birth, Gallatin became secretary of the treasury under Jefferson, and held the office for 13 years. This is still the record, though at one time Henry Morgenthau, Jr., looked as if he might break it. Gallatin originated the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, which gives the first congressional consideration to all revenue measures. This was only one of his many financial devices, which placed him among the leaders of this field.

He also helped frame the Treaty of Ghent which ended the War of 1812, and served as minister to France and England. Nevertheless, when proposed for vice president in 1824, he was so strongly opposed because of his foreign birth that he withdrew. (Having come to this country before the adoption of the Constitution, he could not have been barred from office by his birth abroad.) He was interested in public affairs down to his death in 1849.

A great man in his day, Gallatin should not be forgotten now.

LEGION BUILDING PLAN

ONE OF the many problems to confront the new session of Congress will be a veterans' housing plan submitted by the American Legion. Its Commander, James F. O'Neill, following an executive committee session in Indianapolis recently, said details of the plan would permit groups of veterans to form nonprofit corporations for financing houses. Financial assistance would come through sale of government bonds. The purpose is to achieve speedy low-cost housing for the countless veterans all over the country who still are house-hunting while living in cramped and inadequate or excessively expensive quarters.

Without attempting to pass on the merit of this housing plan, it would seem that some good might come from a study made officially by the American Legion on this most pressing veteran need. The basic difficulty with construction today, whether it be for former GI's or non-veterans, is cost. If the Legion plan can lick this complex problem, the group will be helping not only its own constituency, but the great numbers of other Americans who are increasingly troubled by the housing shortage.

Yes, this is "one world," but there are an awful lot of people in it, all wanting to have their own way, and raising Cain when they can't get it.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Walter Reuther's complete victory at the U.A.W. convention not only routed the Communists among the automobile workers but it finally eliminated the influence of John L. Lewis from that organization which he really founded, for the fight on Reuther was directed by Lewis.

Walter Reuther, like David Dubinsky, is a Social Democrat, which means that he believes in the gradual socialization of the means of production and distribution—but without revolution. Social Democrats, while they would, within the framework of the democratic process, change the economy of their country, reject the concept of the world revolution and of subservience to Moscow. Every Social Democrat is more violently anti-Communist than most capitalists. They hate Stalin as they hate slavery.

With reference to Lewis, I have just been reading George Creel's book, "Rebel at Large." Creel is one of those old-time reporters who got inside a story. Referring to "The Roosevelt-Lewis Feud," Creel says: "... A curious feature of the clamor was that while people and press thought it shameful for John Lewis to have given (money to Roosevelt), no paper or person made mention that it was equally shameful for Mr. Roosevelt to have taken."

Creel tells this story. The United Mine Workers had authorized Lewis to give Roosevelt $250,000 for campaign expenses. They brought the check to Roosevelt and wanted the President to be photographed receiving it. This he declined to do saying, "... Just keep it, and I'll call on you if and when any small need arises." Lewis felt himself outsmarted because from then on Roosevelt would call on him for any amount. "You don't know politicians," was the Lewis retort. "They stay under the golden drip from the honey barrel until no drop is left."

He was right. I quote Creel: "... The first request was from Jim Farley asking $50,000 for the expenses of the headquarters in New York. A second call begged $92,000 for the purchase of radio time, and a third came from Senator La Follette and Frank Walsh, who were organizing Progressives in support of Roosevelt. Cannily enough, John Lewis adopted a fixed pattern of procedure at the start. As each petitioner presented himself, he intoned this ritual: 'Sir, I know you well and favorably, of course, and have no doubt as to your authority. My arrangement, however, was with the President, and I must ask that you bring me his written order.'"

In each case the request was confirmed by the President until the amount was ... $469,668.91. To this amount was added the sum of $14,119.64 turned in by local unions, and $2,500 worth of tickets for the inaugural parade, making a total of $486,288.55. A large part of this huge sum was plainly earmarked as loans, but only $50,000, secured by the Democratic National Committee's note, was ever repaid."

Not surprisingly, Mr. Roosevelt soon forgot the Lewis treasury, for it was not needed at the moment. The Roosevelt smear machine attributed this breach to Lewis arrogance, and even to his desire to be Vice President. Creel explains it this way:

"I have always been of the opinion that the real explanation of the break lies in the contrasting personalities of the two men. Proud and independent, utterly lacking in

DIET AND HEALTH

The Treatment of Acidosis

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WE hear a lot of loose talk these days about acidosis, but few people really understand what it means.

To get the picture, try thinking of the body, with all its many systems and complex activities, as a delicately adjusted scale in which one thing is matched against another to give an unstable but constant equilibrium; or, as a tight-rope artist who would fall from his wire in a moment if he ever stood still.

Complex Fluid

Nowhere is this more true than of the blood, that complex and wonderful fluid in which alkaline substances are matched against acids to make possible the complicated reactions by which we live. To doctors, this equilibrium of the blood is known as the acid-base balance and, if it is seriously upset one way or the other, we get into all sorts of trouble.

A good many different diseases can cause acids to pile up in the tissues faster than they can be eliminated. Other conditions tend to reduce the body's store of alkaline substances unduly. In either case, acidosis results.

Tendency to Acidosis

Diabetic patients have a tendency toward acidosis. It may develop in otherwise healthy people who drink alcohol to excess, or it may be a complication of starvation, heart attacks, and severe asthma.

Alkalosis occurs either from an oversupply of alkaline substances, such as baking soda, or from loss of acid during severe and repeated vomiting.

List of Symptoms

The symptoms of acidosis are loss of appetite, a feeling of tiredness, muscle pains, headache, sickness to the stomach, vomiting, cramps, and rapid breathing. There is a loss of fluid from the blood as a result of vomiting or fluid accumulating in the body tissues. The rapid breathing and loss of blood fluid are the most serious symptoms.

Alkalosis causes lightheadedness, dizziness, sickness at the stomach, and headache. As the condition becomes more severe, there may be muscle spasms and, at times, even convulsions.

Cause of Appearance

The treatment to be given for these conditions bears, in large measure, on the causes of their appearance. For example, in chronic kidney inflammation or chronic arthritis, acidosis is treated by the giving of fluids by injection into a vein or under the skin. A mixture of salt solution and glucose together with sodium lactate is often employed.

When acidosis occurs in the diabetic patient, he is given injections of insulin every half hour and from a quart to a half of fluid by mouth. This fluid is made up of glucose and orange juice, together with salt solution and water. If the patient is unconscious, or there is sickness at the stomach and vomiting, the fluids are given by injection.

From Alcohol Poisoning

In acidosis which develops from alcohol poisoning, the sodium lactate is employed. This, too, may be given by injection into a vein. An alkaline diet following all injections of glucose or salt solutions into a vein is helpful.

In acidosis which occurs during heart failure a diet limited in salt should be used. Other condition, alkalosis or idosis, may be serious. Whenever condition is present should be promptly recognized and treatment started at once, the type depending upon the cause of the disorder.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. A.: My daughter will be three years old in March. During the winter she gets a choking cough. What causes that, and is there a cure for it?

Answer: Coughing attacks may be produced by a number of disorders. The condition may be due to asthma, to inflammation of the throat, the larynx, or windpipe. A careful study should be made by a physician to determine the cause, so that proper treatment can be suggested.

"Because I couldn't do that to Philip."
Alison's voice rose and shook. "You couldn't do it to Philip but you did it to Sam!"

"Yes, I'd known Philip longer. I couldn't deceive him... Twice my feelings have rushed in and closed over me: with Carl and when I saw Sam at his farm this morning. All I should have been to him and hadn't been I wanted to be."

"Last night you said you loved me... I didn't know you loved me."
Teresa dried her eyes. Her voice was thick.

"Sam hasn't wanted me. I'm not a complete fool. His friendly overtures were for Suzy—getting her in the nursery school, at the dinner table, in the living room, all the many little privileges he thought were right. He's never and the slightest intention of marrying me. I'm not as fatally desirable as I thought I was. Now they're all gone, all washed out of me, my feelings and my sins. I don't feel anything. The only thing Sam and I had is ended. I've hurt him. I feel that! For a second I was afraid. I was afraid he'd kill me. Perhaps he would have if he had nothing else. But he has something else. He has you."

"Sam loves me?"

"Of course. I've always known. He loves you very deeply and very dearly. That's why I've tried to keep you apart." Her hands tightened. "I'm a very bad loser. I told him. Not you. You made me. Just sitting there looking at me. Dead silence and all the confusion. I can't bear confusion. Not even an untidy desk. Everything was in confusion—Carl, his saying goody, going off to nowhere. A wedding. Smiling, being charming to everyone and so relieved. The years in this house, seeing Carl in Suzy, working, eternally working with Sam slipping in and out of my mind and all the things I'd left unfinished with him, all the sad regrets. Your will defeated mine tonight."

"Was it, Teresa? Or was it conscience, the little voice of the soul?"

"My will has been everything to me, my servant and my master. I was born unlucky. Born with a need for affection that I never received as a child, born undemonstrative myself, loving a beautiful home and with a body capable of producing children easily but also with a fierce appetite to succeed and live independently. To which person shall I be true? The mother or the professional woman? I can't be both. I've tried and I've been divided. I've tried to hate men partly because I envied them so because love and home and children can quite satisfactorily be only one fourth of their lives. Professionally, I'm a success. But as a woman I'm a rotten failure."

"But if you could choose again?"
"I'd be a woman and give my daughter a name. But who would have me? Who would have us? The sins of the fathers... The patriotism is dormant. The paper that lifted Carl as a casualty is yellow with age. He becomes fainter and fainter with time... You're a better mother than I am, Alison. I'm more efficient, of course. But it is what children remember that's important. Will Suzy remember my efficiency or your drinking tea from an empty cup? Will she remember how much I paid for her dresses or your letting her wear your silver slippers at play?"

She sat up heavily. Alison followed her up the stairs, saw her pause before Suzy's closed door, the muscles in her face tighten, relax, then tighten again. She turned to Alison.

"I'd like to cancel this out, too, while I'm about it. It makes me feel quite religious, confessing my sins... Our grandfather was a rich man until some glib person talked him into playing the stock market. He played it heavily and lost. He was too proud to tell anyone he was almost cleaned out. Almost. There was slightly less than ten thousand dollars in his safe deposit box. I had the key. A few days before he died I took most of it. That money gave me my start. I had to have it. My reasoning, I thought, was sound. Mother would only spend her half foolishly while with all of it I could use it wisely... I'll write you a check tonight for half the amount I took. It will give you and Sam a start."

"Teresa!"

"Everything's snarled like a string with a thousand knots. I've nothing left for which to be grateful."

She turned quickly and went in her room. The key was turned in the lock by a desperate hand.

Quietly Alison went down the carpeted steps again to the telephone in the kitchen.

Philip's sleepy voice asked, "Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

"Yes? Yes? Who is it?"

NEW YORK—They stream into Manhattan every morning at the stroke of nine, heaved up by a great eruption of trains, subways, buses and ferries, and at five in the evening they bolt through the office door like Dagwood and soon are headed back to the outlands again by train, subway, bus and ferry.

They are transients, who work in New York but do not live there, and if they have a feeling toward the city of stone from which they subtract their living wage it is best expressed by the dreadful words, "Oh, New York is all right to visit—but I wouldn't live there on a bet." By now that has become a familiar and infamous sentence; indeed, it once inspired a darkly bitter old sports editor to spit out, "New York's all right to live in, but I wouldn't visit there on a bet."

Mostly I scowl at these infidels, because they scorn my blowy old paramour of steel and skyscrapers, but once in a while I think of them in a spirit of forgive them, for they know not whereof they speak.

New York to the commuter is a long subway or train ride, a few hours at a desk or a typewriter, a grilled-cheese-on-toast in a crowded cafeteria, maybe a half hour off some afternoon to hang out a window and watch a parade down Fifth avenue—and then a long subway or train ride home, to slippers and a hot meal and the nightly gripe to the little woman about what a tough life it is working in the city.

What kind of a New York is that? Why—why, you don't even see Lucius Beebe that way!

SOMETIMES I WISH I could take the transients in hand. Take them, let's say, down to Jane Street, where Alexander Hamilton died, but which remains more clearly in my mind as the alley in which I lived for two years while Mrs. Blotz chased her husband across the roof of the adjacent building nightly as he screamed "For God's sake, sweetheart, don't or I'll jump!"

Take them to the edge of the lake in Central park, where you have to dodge an occasional rat but from where you can look up and see the incredible, breathtaking skyline of midtown New York, first fingering its way to the stars and then again shimmering in the cold, dark water below.

Take them to the wharves along the North river along about evening, when the big liners are beginning to light up; take them up to the Cloisters, where the gardens and statues and deafening silence give you the feeling of having stepped through a door into a world of long ago, as in "Berkeley Square."

I wish I could take them to their own Grand Central Terminal, from where they grab their inevitable 5:15 for nowhere, and have them stand off and watch, without having to rush for the closing gates, and see how they themselves are part of the city—crowding, hurrying, standing, whistling, striding through the catch-basin of the town.

They might discover, as I have, that Park avenue is the best roadway in the east for bicycling, and there is nothing that can quite compare with peddling up it on a Sunday afternoon, surrounded by limousines.

A select few of them I would take to Harlem, where in the midst of poverty and sometimes squalor there is a strange atmosphere of happiness; where people laugh and you wonder what they have to laugh about.

I WOULD TAKE THEM to the Garden on fine night, to listen to the language from another world, in which five of something always is being offered in exchange for seven, with the stipulation that the boy in black trunks takes the boy in purple trunks inside of three.

I would take them past Trinity church on a snowy night, along the Bowery on a summer afternoon with the sunlight through the El tracks speckling the sprawled drunks on the sidewalk, or over to Tenth avenue with its sidewalk fruit stands and its gaping, empty stores and its housewives leaning on elbows at open windows.

I would just take them by the hand and wander with them through the city, soaking up the sounds and sights, with no train to catch and no pipe-and-slippers rendezvous to keep.

I would let them feel the nervous vigor of the metropolis, to see its dirt and seaminess and its power and glory. I would show them my New York. It can be lived in, as well as visited.

ately successful after some disputation, delays and reversals, during the next year. Much happiness through love, spouse or friends is portended. If married, a "happy event" is likely. The child born on this date will show much artistic and creative ability, and an ultra-modern profession wherein these talents can be employed will prove more remunerative and congenial than an orthodox career.

Today's Horoscope

Your life is uneventful and runs in a smooth and orderly manner if today is your birthday. You are happy and contented, honest and affectionate. Generally you are a very pleasant companion, but when your personal comfort is threatened you are likely to be a bit selfish. You are sociable and have many warm friends. Your day will be good for finances and dealings with friends. Some opposition may develop. A new business contact will be moderate.

BULLETINS on the wedding dinner the Duke of Alba gave when his daughter became a bride are still coming in. The whole business sounds like a gastronomic world series.

The guests knocked off 1,000 pounds of seafood which makes the feast the biggest fish story of the year.

Turkeys to the tune of 675 were gobbled, which is a new high in drumstick production.

The guests then ate their way through more pies (600) than were tossed during the entire history of Mack Sennett movie comedies.

To polish off the meal nearly 15,000 bottles of whisky and wine were served producing, we'll wager, the greatest mass hangover of all time.

There were five bottles of booze for each guest. When the Duke of Alba says "it's on the house" he really means it.

175 Grangers At Pomona Grange All Day Meeting

All day meeting of Pomona grange was held in the Walnut township school building with Nebraska grange being hosts for the occasion. Ben Grace, worthy Pomona master, was in charge of the business meeting. The eight subordinate grangers and six juvenile granges reported records of their accomplishments since the last regular session.

The worthy master and overseer appointed Mrs. Herbert Caldwell and Paul Peters to serve on a resolutions committee to prepare a memorial slate for the late Frank Jinks. They also appointed Russell Anderson, Mrs. Roy Fraunfelder and Harold Fisher to prepare resolutions of respect for the late Burley Pierce.

T. M. Glick, worthy deputy master, gave a summary of the county grange work. Mrs. T. M. Glick submitted her annual report of the home economics division.

Pickaway county, at the recent state grange convention, again won the banner for outstanding work in home economics. Attendance for the all day session totaled 175 persons. Noon lunch was served by Mrs. Carl D. Bennett, chairman, and members of Nebraska grange.

Program was arranged and announced by Mrs. Ben Grace, lecturer, which opened with the assembly singing "My Faith Looks Up To Thee". A. M. Peters read the "History of Pomona Grange". Mrs. Frank Graves, member of Logan Elm grange who won second in the state dress contest was presented.

A playlet "How The Story Grew" was enacted by Mrs. Myron Hudson, Mrs. Heber Durrett, Mrs. Paul Beers, Mrs. John Beavers, Mrs. John Disbennett, Mrs. O. M. Beckett, Mrs. Fred Prushing, Jr., Mrs. William Beavers and Mrs. Bernard Ball. Mrs. George Finch was accompanist.

Next regular Pomona grange meeting will be February 14 in the Saltcreek township school building.

Rennel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple. Just go to your drugstore and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take just two table-spoons a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—few reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Here is what Mrs. C. Howedel, 9618 Larmer Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, says about Rennel: "I have been taking your wonderful product for some time and plan to continue to take it as I have never felt better in my life and I am reducing the easy way. I have lost 30 pounds and am losing an average of 2 to 3 pounds a week." "Don't be switched to another product, get genuine Rennel."

E. Betz restaurant, corner Court and Main streets. Donations must be in by 10 a. m. as the sale starts promptly at 11 a. m. Although only the children and parents of the two organizations are being solicited for foods for the sale, all other donations will be accepted.

E. M. S. ACTIVITIES

English Merit Society of Circleville high school will go to Columbus Thursday afternoon. During the afternoon they will attend a broadcast at radio station W C O L and visit the Gallery of Fine Arts. Officers of the organization are Edna Maynard, Rosalie Bartholomew, Mary Ellen Young and Donald Beck. Mrs. Clark Will is advisor.

175 Grangers At Pomona Grange All Day Meeting

All day meeting of Pomona grange was held in the Walnut township school building with Nebraska grange being hosts for the occasion. Ben Grace, worthy Pomona master, was in charge of the business meeting. The eight subordinate grangers and six juvenile granges reported records of their accomplishments since the last regular session.

The worthy master and overseer appointed Mrs. Herbert Caldwell and Paul Peters to serve on a resolutions committee to prepare a memorial slate for the late Frank Jinks. They also appointed Russell Anderson, Mrs. Roy Fraunfelder and Harold Fisher to prepare resolutions of respect for the late Burley Pierce.

T. M. Glick, worthy deputy master, gave a summary of the county grange work. Mrs. T. M. Glick submitted her annual report of the home economics division.

Pickaway county, at the recent state grange convention, again won the banner for outstanding work in home economics. Attendance for the all day session totaled 175 persons. Noon lunch was served by Mrs. Carl D. Bennett, chairman, and members of Nebraska grange.

Program was arranged and announced by Mrs. Ben Grace, lecturer, which opened with the assembly singing "My Faith Looks Up To Thee". A. M. Peters read the "History of Pomona Grange". Mrs. Frank Graves, member of Logan Elm grange who won second in the state dress contest was presented.

A playlet "How The Story Grew" was enacted by Mrs. Myron Hudson, Mrs. Heber Durr, Mrs. Paul Beers, Mrs. John Beavers, Mrs. John Disbennett, Mrs. O. M. Beckett, Mrs. Fred Prushing, Jr., Mrs. William Beavers and Mrs. Bernard Ball. Mrs. George Finch was accompanist.

Next regular Pomona grange meeting will be February 14 in the Salt Creek township school building.

Daughters Of Union Veterans Of Civil War Hold Meeting

Mrs. C. O. Kerns, president, presided during the business meeting when members of Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War met Tuesday evening in the Post room of Memorial hall.

An acknowledgement was read from officials at the Veterans hospital, Chillicothe, thanking the local society for its donation of $10. Members voted to have the annual daughter's day dinner, December 12, instead of December 10 as previously announced. Final preparations for the turkey dinner were made.

Mrs. W. E. Pickens and Mrs. Cora Coffland were hostesses and served refreshments during the social hours. The next meeting will be December 2.

FOUR professional piano accordion concert artists will present a program Friday at 8 p. m. in the Circleville high school auditorium under auspices of Business and Professional Women's club and members of the Circleville high school band.

Benefit Bridge Parties Continue For Kindergarten

Another in the series of bridge parties for benefit of the Circleville kindergarten was held Tuesday evening when Mrs. Fred J. Colville entertained in her home on West Franklin street. The bridge party was one of several projects to raise funds to establish and maintain a kindergarten. Each guest will take an active part by giving a bridge party, with a fixed amount to be donated by each person.

Contract bridge was played by Mrs. W. L. Thomas, Mrs. Richard Morris, Mrs. Harry Graef, Mrs. D. L. Hawkes, Mrs. George W. VanCamp, Mrs. Arthur Wagar, Mrs. Carl Johnson and Mrs. Dick Bremer. Prizes for high scores were won by Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Thomas. The hostess served a dessert course.

MEETING PLANNED

Members of the Ladies Aid of Pleasantview Evangelical United Brethren church will meet Friday at 2 p. m. in the home of Mrs. O. S. Mowery, Salt Creek township. Mrs. W. E. Luckhart will be assisting hostess.

MEETING POSTPONED

Meeting scheduled for members of Circle 5, Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church to be held Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Guy Heffner, has been postponed indefinitely.

Officers Elected At W. W. Sunday School Class Meet

Mrs. Sterling Croman was elected president of the Willing Workers Sunday school class of the Pious Evangelical United Brethren church when its members met in the home of Mrs. Walter Richards, Washington township. Other officers appointed were Mrs. Guy Stockman, vice-president, Mrs. Larry Goodman, secretary, Mrs. Richards, assistant secretary, Miss Adeline Holderman, treasurer, Mrs. Jacob Glitt, pianist and Mrs. Ethel Klingensmith, assistant pianist.

Mrs. Klingensmith presented the afternoon's devotionals and program. The group joined to sing a hymn and Mrs. Larry Goodman offered prayer. "Giving and Thanksgiving" was read by Mrs. Forest Croman and "Thanksgiving of 1947" by Mrs. Floyd Brobst. "I Am So Glad" was read by Mrs. Stockman and Mrs. Creation Kraft read "Shall I Thank God For Bread". Concluding "Thanksgiving Thoughts" were read by Miss Holderman. Mrs. John Lambrides, sang, accompanied by Mrs. Glitt.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to 15 members and guests. The class will have an exchange of $1 gifts at the Christmas meeting in the home of Mrs. Turney Kraft. Mrs. Forest Croman will be in charge of devotionals and Mrs. Creation Kraft the program.

MIESSE-STEELE

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Florance Marguerite Miesse and Carlos Custer Steele, which took place August 6, in Detroit, Mich. The new Mrs. Steele was a daughter of the late Dr. B. F. Miesse and Mrs. Miesse, who lived in Chillicothe. Mr. Steele is a son of Mrs. Isaac P. Steele, Adelphi.

Archbishops To Press Elizabeth For Best-Dressed Title At Nuptials

LONDON, Nov. 18—Princess Elizabeth beyond any possibility of doubt will be the best-dressed personage at her own wedding here tomorrow.

But even so, her royal highness will be hard put to rival the magnificence of the archbishops of Canterbury and York in their full canonicals. Their robes of stiff white and gold brocade will shimmer like the sun in the eternal bloom of Westminster Abbey on the wedding day.

Even some of the lesser clergy will come in copes of cloth of gold. And there will be reams of canons, minor canons and canons' vergers at Westminster in magnificent red velvet and cloth of gold robes first worn at the coronation of King Edward VII.

Somewhere along the line this wedding tradition has flown in the window and austerity has gone right out the door.

The only person who is going to look austere is—as usual—the bridegroom.

HE WILL WEAR the simple uniform of a lieutenant in his future father-in-law's navy in which the coat is popularly known, alas, as a "monkey jacket."

The American and dominion press and radio—still clutching at the fiction of austerity—finally began to understand the magnificent and glorious pageant that will unfold at the Abbey tomorrow.

Correspondents came away from a "briefing" session at the Abbey with a conviction that the late Flo Ziegfeld was a piker.

When England unrolls her centuries-old traditions that surround the throne, the ensuing pageantry calls for smoked glasses.

The preceptor of Westminster Abbey, Dr. C. M. Armitage who lectured the correspondents on intricacies of the ceremony, gave some indication of the display to be seen on the wedding day when he flatly declared:

"There will be no flowers on the altar. That is not our custom in Westminster Abbey. It is our custom to pile on all our great and glorious gold plate. That is sufficient decoration."

IT SHO' IS.

Older reporters recalled that display of the Abbey gold plate at the coronation of Elizabeth's mama and papa in 1937. The mass of gold plate was astounding and glittered like klieg lights at a Hollywood opening.

After all, as the preceptor explained: "The king is a visitor to Westminster."

Naturally the daughter of a mere visitor, even though she be a future queen, cannot expect to play hob with the traditions of the Abbey.

And when the great procession moves down the aisle after signing the marriage registers, then and only then for the first time in their lives and probably the last, will the bride and bridegroom precede the king of England at any public ceremony.

American reporters were fascinated to learn that so strict are the rules of precedence in England and so stern the admonitions about who follows whom that the king and the bride will lead the procession of bridesmaids.

In all fashionable marriages otherwise—at least in the good old USA—the bridesmaids precede the bride and her pa down the aisle.

The bride's appearance is always the great climax of the procession. But in jolly old England when the bride is the heiress-presumptive and her pa is the king, they lead the way and the bridesmaids come tripping after.

Troubles Plentiful For La Motta; Fight Solons Ready Probe

NEW YORK, Nov. 19—Legislative inquiry into the singular aspects of the Jake La Motta-Billy Fox bout was promised by way of a three-sided investigation today as troubles began to pile up for the sorely beset La Motta.

Already the co-principal in two official probes by the district attorney and the boxing commission, the Bronx middleweight ran into further difficulties in domestic relations court, was given the lie by his personal physician and faced the possibility of having his bank accounts impounded.

In addition, it was reported an attempt was being made to establish that a spectacular betting coup was effected on the fight.

These last two proposals were attributed unofficially to District Attorney Frank Hogan's staff. The DA's corps of sleuths is represented as anxious to learn why Broadway bookmakers were so sure La Motta was going to lose that they refused to "book" bets against him a few hours before last Friday's fiasco.

Previously, the betting odds had suddenly soared from even money to 12-5 on Fox who promptly won on a technical knockout in the fourth round to a chorus of newspaper disapproval. The latter was said to have inspired the joint actions by commission and city authorities.

State Democratic Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick indicated the legislature didn't intend to let the probe stop there. His statement implied that a dual

GRID LEAGUE CHIEFS FAILING TO SET MARKS

Steelers, Cards Pace NFL But Not In Individual Departments

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19—If divisional leadership in the National Football league were dependent upon top-rating in the defensive and offensive departments, the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Chicago Cardinals wouldn't head the east and west respectively.

Latest statistics compiled by the NFL reveal that not one member of either the league-leading Steelers or Cardinals is head man in a leading classification like passing or ground gaining.

Steve Van Buren, the pile-driving back for the contending Philadelphia Eagles, maintained his leadership in ground-gaining by chewing off 66 yards in Sunday's Boston game. That gives Swivelin' Steve a total yardage of 700, tops in both leagues.

THE PASSING department is in the hands of Slinging Sammy Baugh of the Redskins and Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears.

Baugh has faded back and chucked 217 passes for 128 completions, 1804 yards, 15 touchdowns and a completion average of 58.1 per cent. Luckman has 124 completions in 220 tries for 1816 yards and a net passing percentage of 56.4.

In addition, Sid has clicked for 19 TD aeriels, quarterbacked the Bears to six consecutive triumphs, and thrown the majority of the 40 passes End Jim Keane has caught for the league leadership in the pass-receiving class.

Steve Lach, of Pittsburgh is tied for scoring honors in the east with Van Buren, but his 48 point total is overshadowed by the fact that three players in the western division have better or equally good totals.

Bill Dudley of the Detroit Lions heads the scoring pack with 60 points, and right behind him is Pat Harder of the Cards with 59.

NEW ENGLAND SIZZLES AS BRAVES SWAP PAIR

BOSTON, Nov. 19—The hot stove league fairly sizzled today in New England.

The Boston Braves swapped Outfielder Johnny Hopp and Second Baseman Danny Murtaugh to Pittsburgh for Outfielder Jim Russell, Pitcher Al Lyons and Catcher Bill Salkeld.

The Braves did not part with cash in their deal with the Pirates. The Tribe was looking primarily for an outfielder with a good throwing arm, and Russell may be the answer.

Chappuis Said Certain To Grab Big 9 Honors

CHICAGO, Nov. 19—Bob Chappuis, Michigan's great half-back, seemed certain today of ending the Big Nine football campaign with individual top honors in total yards gained for the second straight year.

In five games Chappuis has piled up 712 yards, mostly by passes, and his closest rivals were too far behind to threaten the lead in Saturday's final games of the Western conference season.

The Michigan star has accounted for 438 yards on passes and he has gained 274 yards by rushing.

His nearest rival on yardage was Perry Moss, the Illinois passing ace, who has made 537 yards, all but six of them on passes.

PROPOSED LOOP PLANNING MEET TO ORGANIZE

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 19—Sponsors of a proposed Class "C" baseball circuit composed of tri-state teams from the adjoining corners of West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky were scheduled to meet tonight here.

R. T. Caldwell, the Ashland attorney who was to preside at the organizational session, said the loop already has attracted interest from representatives of Ashland, Ky.; Lexington, Ky.; Portsmouth, Ohio; Bluefield, W. Va.; Fairmount, W. Va.; Logan, W. Va.; Parkersburg, W. Va., and Huntington.

More teams are needed to fill out the circuit, according to Caldwell, and efforts to bring additional Ohio teams into the league will be made.

State Democratic Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick indicated the legislature didn't intend to let the probe stop there. His statement implied that a dual investigation would be launched, taking in the boxing commission as well as the sport itself.

Chairman Eddie Egan would not comment on Dr. Nicholas Salerno's statement that La Motta was in sound condition when examined 24 hours before the fight.

La Motta's explanation for his abject failure in front of Fox was that he had entered the ring against Dr. Salerno's orders, because of a body injury, technically described as hematoma of the spleen.

Meanwhile, La Motta was made the defendant yesterday in an action brought by his estranged wife, Mrs. Ida Geller La Motta, who is seeking legal separation, an increase in alimony and $10,000 counsel fees from the fighter.

BUCK WONDERING ONLY HOW MUCH SCORE WILL BE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—Coach Wes Fesler and his Bucks were merely playing out the string today as they awaited the beating everyone believes they inevitably will take at Ann Arbor this weekend.

Chief speculation around Columbus centered not on whether the Bucks have a chance to upset Michigan but rather on how nearly the Wolverines would approach their 1946 score of 58-0 against the Bucks.

Fesler indicated he would stand pat on his lineup against the undefeated Western conference champions. That decision was dictated by the fact that he has already attempted almost every possible improvisation in attempts to bolster the weak Bucks.

The situation was made no happier by the continued absence from practice of Fullback Joe Whisler and Halfback Rod Swinehart. Neither is expected to see service Saturday.

Third String Quarterback Billy Doolittle also missed yesterday's practice due to a cold.

the pliability that makes the successful courtier, John Lewis gratified on the President, accustomed as he was to the Corcorans and the Rosenmans. Franklin Roosevelt, in his turn, rasped John Lewis by his assumption that it was both an honor and a reward for a coal miner, and the son of a coal miner, to be received.

Anyhow, Lewis and Roosevelt became bitter enemies. This, in the end, forced Lewis out of the C. I. O., which, having become filled with Communists, became Roosevelt's creature. His closest associate, Philip Murray, went over to Roosevelt. Creel, his friend, says:

"In this record may be found the explanation of John Lewis's seeming intransigence in later years. His treasury looted by a trick, his friends seduced, and his union the object of steady governmental attack, he turned to the economic strength of the U. M. W. A. as his one reliance."

And now Walter Reuther has bested him in the U. A. W., defeating every man that Lewis favored. Lewis still controls the miners, and his District 50 will continue to be a battering ram against unfriendly unions, but he cannot form a vast labor network that would recognize his leadership.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

YEAR'S VACATION AFTER DECADE OF WORK

That's Revolutionary Plan of Aggressive Western Firm

THEIR PLAN—President Arthur Lamel (left), Secretary-Treasurer Philip Zonne (center) and Vice President Ray Cripps look over some blueprints of a new motor. Their's is the one-year-for-10-years idea.

By VICTOR GUNSON

Central Press Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—Three young engineers, who startled the industrial world with an announced plan to give 10-year employees of their factory a whole year's paid vacation, think their revolutionary idea is as sound as business itself.

The originators are Arthur E. Lamel, 36, Ray H. Cripps, 37, and Philip W. Zonne, 30, partners in American Electric Motors, Inc., of Los Angeles.

The company began functioning under their energetic direction last Feb. 15, and 10 years from that date the first employees will begin 52 weeks of vacation with 52 weeks of pay.

The present 55 employees, who work on two shifts in a non-

the pliability that makes the successful courtier, John Lewis graced on the President, accustomed as he was to the Corcorans and the Rosenmans. Franklin Roosevelt, in his turn, rasped John Lewis by his assumption that it was both an honor and a reward for a coal miner, and the son of a coal miner, to be received.

Anyhow, Lewis and Roosevelt became bitter enemies. This, in the end, forced Lewis out of the C. I. O., which, having become filled with Communists, became Roosevelt's creature. His closest associate, Philip Murray, went over to Roosevelt. Creel, his friend, says:

"In this record may be found the explanation of John Lewis's seeming intransigence in later years. His treasury looted by a trick, his friends seduced, and his union the object of steady governmental attack, he turned to the economic strength of the U. M. W. A. as his one reliance."

And now Walter Reuther has bested him in the U. A. W., defeating every man that Lewis favored. Lewis still controls the miners, and his District 50 will continue to be a battering ram against unfriendly unions, but he cannot form a vast labor network that would recognize his leadership.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

YEAR'S VACATION AFTER DECADE OF WORK

That's Revolutionary Plan of Aggressive Western Firm

THEIR PLAN—President Arthur Lamel (left), Secretary-Treasurer Philip Zonne (center) and Vice President Ray Cripps look over some blueprints of a new motor. Theirs is the one-year-for-10-year idea.

By VICTOR GUNSON

Central Press Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—Three young engineers, who startled the industrial world with an announced plan to give 10-year employees of their factory a whole year's paid vacation, think their revolutionary idea is as sound as business itself.

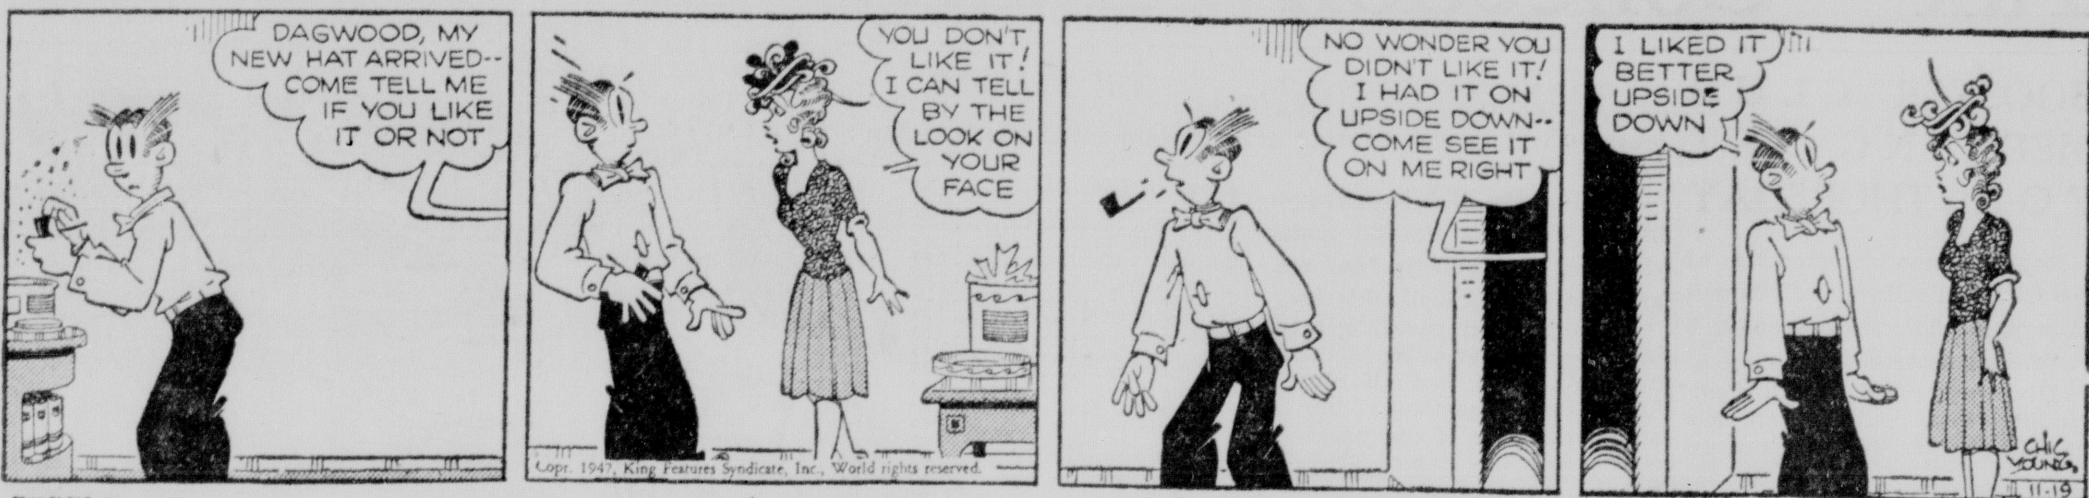

The originators are Arthur E. Lamel, 36, Ray H. Cripps, 37, and Philip W. Zonne, 30, partners in American Electric Motors, Inc., of Los Angeles.

The company began functioning under their energetic direction last Feb. 15, and 10 years from that date the first employees will begin 52 weeks of vacation with 52 weeks of pay.

The present 55 employees, who work on two shifts in a non-union shop, could hardly believe their ears when they were given the news, but they all think it's "wonderful," men and women, young and old.

LAMEL, president of the company which is now doubling the size of its factory, explained to Central Press that the long vacation idea began as "just a lot of talk" when the three partners were having dinner together one night.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"DISHONOR" TRICKS
EVERY bridge player uses some kind of methodical counting to estimate the value of the honor cards in his hand. "Honor tricks" are the unit used by many. The expression "dishonor tricks" was invented the other day by a rather keen but none too charitable player who spoke of the way he rated some of his weaker opponents. When certain inept opponents sat at his right or left, he would count them as worth a king to his side, and with a few others against him, he said he would bid exactly as if he had an extra ace in his hand. In the long run, he said, it has paid him in additional games and slams which he would not bid against keener opposition.

South said after this deal that he never would have made that ambitious reach for the small slam premium if he had certain other players sitting in the East and West seats against him. But he rated each as worth about a king to him, and therefore counted his own hand exactly the same as if he held an additional ace.

He said he didn't know just what the defenders would do to give him a trick he could not earn by himself, but expected them to in one way or another.

West started with the unorthodox lead of the diamond 6, knowing his partner was not a card-reader any more than he was himself, to try to fool South. On him it had no particular effect, however, as he took East's 8 with the K, then sent the club J through to the K. East returned the diamond J to the A, and South then took out trumps with the heart 5 to the A, the 4 to the 10 and the K. Right there West rose to the occasion, or descended to it, by discarding his spade 3, when he should have thrown the diamond Q.

Now South led to the spade K, back to the A and ruffed the 6 with the heart J. The club A brought a discard of the diamond 4. He returned with a diamond ruff and cashed the two good spades, one of which would have had to be lost if West had not thrown one of his away.

If East bids 2-No Trumps, what would you do in the South to confuse the issue?

Tracy wrist radio and it certainly came in handy. The Kraft Music Hall had a rehearsal forcing Jolson to miss the football game. So, he spent most of his time between rehearsal listening to the game on his wrist radio.

Senator Claghorn, stalwart of the "Alley" on Fred Allen's show, was talking about the value of newspaper editorials. He said he nailed the editorial page of a certain paper over a hole to keep the water off his bees. When 250 bees were drowned, he was sure that proved the editorials couldn't hold water.

Is Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve finally going to march to the altar this year on the popular Wednesday program, "The Great Gildersleeve"? Writers on the show are being flooded with queries from listeners since they recently introduced a new love interest for "Gildy" -- "Doris Dalrymple." The scripters, however, are keeping mum on whether he'll finally walk down the aisle.

Ray Milland informed the audience of the Lux Radio Theatre last Monday that he has made thirty-one trips to England, which is something of a record for an actor.

Chamber Warns of Tax Collection Laxity

'CRACK DOWN' BY STATE DUE ON VIOLATORS

Retail Merchant Leader Stresses Need For Compliance

Warning that the state tax commission is launching a "crack down" on violators of the Ohio sales tax law, Frank Susa, chairman of the retail merchants' division of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday urged all stores to immediately institute a careful check of their sales tax collection procedure.

"I can state definitely," Mr. Susa declared, "that the tax commission means business. They are going to tighten up from now on."

"The announcement just made concerning the shakeup in the sales tax collection machinery and the creation of a new compliance division under direction of an experienced federal tax man means that from now on the retail vendor is going to be forced to collect the tax on every taxable sale, and to issue a prepaid tax receipt to every customer in every such instance—or else."

MR. SUSA asserted that state inspectors have found that laxity in sales tax collections is on the increase. Many merchants know this is true.

"I am satisfied," Mr. Susa said, "that our reputable stores are really doing an excellent job, but under the hectic conditions which have prevailed in recent years carelessness is creeping into some of these establishments."

"I want to emphasize to Cincinnati store operators that Tax Commissioner Emory Glander and his staff mean business. The state is ready to provide plenty of money for promoting this sustained drive—and somebody is likely to get hurt."

The tightening up by the state is welcomed by the majority of merchants, Mr. Susa declared, adding that those who are collecting the sales tax honestly naturally suffer from the competition of those who neglect to collect the tax through carelessness or who collect it and pocket the money.

MINOR DAMAGE CAUSED IN THREE FIRE CALLS

Fire of undetermined origin caused little damage at 7:05 a. m. Wednesday to the attic of the home of Arthur McClain at 357 West Mound street.

Firemen made two runs Tuesday night. At 7:30 o'clock a blaze caused minor loss at the home of Floyd Ott at 208 West Ohio street, and at 8:40 firemen were called to the Allen Shaffer property on North Scioto street where fire caused slight loss.

CUB PACK NEWS

Cub pack No. 11 will assemble for its monthly den meeting Thursday evening in the social rooms of the First Methodist church. Each pack will give a five-minute Thanksgiving program. Year badges will be awarded by Wink Wellington, Scout master. Graduation ceremonies will be held for Cub Scouts who now are 12 years old. A short parents and committee meeting will follow the exercises.

BOOSTER CLUB MEETING SET FOR THURSDAY

Regular monthly meeting of the Circleville Booster Club will take place Thursday evening 8 p. m. in Memorial Hall.

All members of the club, including men and women are urged to be present at this meeting.

Thursday's session has been designated as "Dad's Night" in honor of the fathers of the entire Circleville high school football squad.

It is hoped that through this meeting a closer relationship between Dads, coaches, players and Booster Club members can be attained.

Program Chairman James Callihan has announced that local entertainers will present the program for the evening. Other features will be the showing of football pictures.

The Booster Club is endeavoring to create a mutual understanding of problems that may arise in high school athletics.

Through these monthly meetings the Booster Club members and fathers of football players have the opportunity to get an inside view of the problems that face the team and the coaching staff.

It is hoped that a good turnout will be present for the Thursday session.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

Chamber Warns of Tax Collection Laxity

'CRACK DOWN' BY STATE DUE ON VIOLATORS

Retail Merchants' Leader Stresses Need For Compliance

Warning that the state tax commission is launching a "crack down" on violators of the Ohio sales tax law, Frank Sosa, chairman of the retail merchants' division of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday urged all stores to immediately institute a careful check of their sales tax collection procedure.

"I can state definitely," Mr. Sosa declared, "that the tax commission means business. They are going to tighten up from now on."

"The announcement just made concerns the shakeup in the sales tax collection machinery and the creation of a new compliance division under direction of an experienced federal tax man means that from now on the retail vendor is going to be forced to collect the tax on every taxable sale, and to issue a prepaid tax receipt to every customer in every such instance—or else."

MR. SUSA asserted that state inspectors have found that laxity in sales tax collections is on the increase. Many merchants know this is true.

"I am satisfied," Mr. Sosa said, "that our reputable stores are really doing an excellent job, but under the hectic conditions which have prevailed in recent years carelessness is creeping into some of these establishments."

"I want to emphasize to Cincinnati store operators that Tax Commissioner Emory Glander and his staff mean business. The state is ready to provide plenty of money for promoting this sustained drive—and somebody is likely to get hurt."

The tightening up by the state is welcomed by the majority of merchants, Mr. Sosa declared, adding that those who are collecting the sales tax honestly naturally suffer from the competition of those who neglect to collect the tax through carelessness or who collect it and pocket the money.

MINOR DAMAGE CAUSED IN THREE FIRE CALLS

Fire of undetermined origin caused little damage at 7:05 a. m. Wednesday to the attic of the home of Arthur McClain at 357 West Mount street.

Firemen made two runs Tuesday night. At 7:30 o'clock a blaze caused minor loss at the home of Floyd Ott at 208 West Ohio street, and at 8:40 firemen were called to the Allen Shaffer property on North Scioto street where fire caused slight loss.

CUB PACK NEWS

Cub pack No. 11 will assemble for its monthly den meeting Thursday evening in the social rooms of the First Methodist church. Each pack will give a five-minute Thanksgiving program. Year badges will be awarded by Wink Wellington, Scout master. Graduation ceremonies will be held for Cub Scouts who now are 12 years old. A short parents and committee meeting will follow the exercises.
